

As a working U.S. citizen, I should possess the right to pay for services offered to me (and benefit me) without the interference of government groups setting out to dictate my rights and condition my freedom.